

People can not control themselves, especially when money is at key. Proof being that the government is constantly imposes new laws more and more restrictives, sometimes flirting with the thin constitutional line. FCC regulations are like laws and keep the big bad boys in check. Abolishing these regulations would be terrible for FAIR competition and ultimately bad for the compaignies that would take advantage of this deregulation.

Thank you for taking the time to read this.
Dragos